8 Federal Aircraft Reconnoiter Over Hills To Direct 'Flying Squads' in Wiping-Up Campaign

EDILLO REPORTED EN ROUTE TO U. S.

Strong Man' Also Said To Be Trying To Contact Semi-Fascist Group.

MEXICO, D. F., May 22.—(AP)—The Mexican government, determined to smash a Rightist rebellion in San Luis Potosi state before it flares into civil war, reinforced its punitive expedition today and mapped a cavalry mop-up of Saturnino Cedillo's peasant army.

The defense ministry dispatched the 36th infantry battalion from the capital early today to back hard-riding cavalrymen among the 10,000 men President Cardenas had concentrated in the provincial stronghold of the free-lance strong man.

Actual warfare between federal troops and the "Cedillistas" broke

CARDENAS' HOME IS ATTACKED AGAIN

SAN LUIS POTOSI, Mexico, May 22.—(AP)—Federal command aircraft today drove off a rebel plane which made a second attempt to bomb the villa Heron residence of President Cardenas.

A fast transport ship of the navy type, identified by federal authorities as one of the planes in possession of the rebel chieftain, Saturnino Cedillo, dropped four bombs near Cardenas' field headquarters yesterday.

yesterday when 200 cavalrymen clattered into Rio Verde, 60 miles east southeast of San Luis Potosi, and drove out a rebel force.

25 Killed in Clash.
Twenty-five were killed—22 rebels, a federal captain and two federal privates. Fifteen rebels were wounded and 80 captured.

A government estimate put the number of men under Cedillo's command at 2,000—a marked reduction from the 18,000 to 20,000 attributed to the agrarian leader before the outbreak.

Deployed through the hills of San Luis Potosi state, they were hunted by 18 reconnoitering federal planes.

On the basis of the airman's reports, the federal command ordered "flying squads" of cavalry to bomb the terrain and wipe out "insurrections."

Whereabouts of Cedillo, until last week a general in the rebel army and until last August Cardenas' secretary of agriculture, was unknown.

Dispatches from Matamoros, across the Rio Grande from Brownsville, Texas, said the strong man was expected there tomorrow en route to the United States.

The Associated Press correspondent at San Luis Potosi, however, quoted a "source" whose identity is beyond all doubt as

LABORITES SPURN PHIL LA FOLLETTE FOR RE-ELECTION

Progressives Select Milwaukee's Socialist Mayor, Daniel W. Hoan, as U. S. Senate Candidate.

MADISON, Wis., May 22.—(AP)—The Wisconsin Farmer-Labor-Progressive Federation today snubbed Governor Philip La Follette, leader of the new National Progressive party, and unanimously endorsed Daniel W. Hoan, Milwaukee's Socialist mayor, as progressive candidate for United States senator.

Cheering delegates voted down Hoan's flat refusal to run for the senatorship, and insisted he be drafted for that office.

La Follette Ruled Out.
The convention applauded when the secretary ruled out Governor La Follette's name as the indorsee for re-election, because he is not a member of the federation, but it took no stand for or against the National Progressive party.

The Wisconsin federation indorsed as its candidate for governor one of La Follette's closest friends, Secretary of State Theodore Dammann. Political observers took this to mean that if La Follette, who has not yet announced his personal plans, decides to run for re-election, Dammann would withdraw and again be candidate for secretary of state.

Refuses to Join.
The federation is composed of nine organizations which encompasses the AFL, CIO, Socialist and Progressive parties, the Workers' Alliance (an organization of unemployed), railroad brotherhoods, and three farm groups. Since it was organized in 1935 La Follette has declined to join the federation, but many of his associates in legislative and county organizations are members.

La Follette's advisers said they foresaw no complications in the F-L-P convention action, and it would have no effect on the new party organization. La Follette had not asked for an indorsement.

Georgia Air Tour by 50 Planes Ends Without One Major Mishap

By CARY WILMER.

Planes on Georgia's third annual air tour roared into Candler Field yesterday afternoon to complete one of the most successful aviation ventures in the state's history.

Not a major mishap marred the 1,000-mile flight to a dozen cities in which an average of about 50 ships participated, making a total flying distance equal to twice around the world.

"It couldn't have been better," was the verdict of William K. Jenkins, of Atlanta, chairman of the general arrangements committee, who kept things humming steadily from the first takeoff Thursday morning until the final "three-point landing."

'BIG PUSH' TO PASS PAY BILL IN HOUSE WILL START TODAY

Leaders Are Confident of Approval by Tuesday Night Despite Southern, Western Opposition.

ROOSEVELT CALLS STRATEGY PARLEY

Whip Warns 'Guillotine' Awaits Any Effort To Change Legislation.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(UP)—Armed with last-minute instructions from President Roosevelt, house leaders tomorrow will begin "the big push" for passage of the chief executive's controversial wage-hour bill, drawing the lines for a bitter fight which may bring a filibuster in the senate and delay sine die adjournment.

The bill, facing stubborn opposition from the southern Democrats and western agriculture interests, comes to the floor by petition at noon from the hostile house rules committee which had bottled it up. Two hours earlier Mr. Roosevelt will meet with his congressional lieutenants in a final strategy conference.

Passage by Tomorrow.
House leaders are predicting passage by Tuesday night. They have mustered their forces for a quick assault and are confident the opposition will crumble. Representative Mary Norton, Democrat, New Jersey, chairman of the labor committee, said the margin of victory will be "comfortable."

The bill provides for establishment of minimum wages of 40 cents an hour after three years and a maximum 40-hour work week after two years and would affect all industries not specifically exempted.

First test of strength on the issue, which has split party ranks, will come shortly after Mrs. Norton offers a formal motion to discharge the rules committee from further consideration. If adopted, the measure will be opened to four hours of general debate after which amendments may be offered.

Representative Robert Ramspeck, Democrat, Georgia, leader of a bloc of 100 southern Democrats demanding a "better break" for their section, said it looks like it will be impossible to defeat the Norton measure.

"Guillotine Changes."
Representative Patrick J. Boiland, Democrat, Pennsylvania, house whip, predicted after a check-up that the house will pass the bill without amendment. He warned that the administration will have a "workable majority" on the floor at all times to "guillotine" any changes.

Meeting with the President tomorrow will be Vice President Garner, Senate Majority Leader Barkley, Speaker Bankhead and House Majority Leader Rayburn. "We will pass the wage-hour bill by Tuesday night," Bankhead said.

'I Knew He Was Poor Boy,' Betty Reveals

BETTY GRABLE, JACKIE COOGAN.

Betty Knew Jackie Coogan Was Poor Before They Wed

'The Kid' Won't Let His Actress-Wife Put One Penny in House Fund, Blonde Says; She Tells of Mrs. Bernstein's Warning About Money.

HOLLYWOOD, May 22.—Betty Grable is greatly surprised that anyone should ask her what she thinks about "the Coogan case."

The lithe blond film beauty feels that her actions speak louder than any words—she married Jackie Coogan, they are deeply in love, and she's with him to the finish.

Betty is known as the "ideal Hollywood beauty." She acts, sings and dances, but behind it all is a native shrewdness that has proved a big help to Jackie in his momentous court battle with his mother and stepfather, the Arthur Bernsteins, over the fortune he earned as "The Kid" in pictures, years ago.

"Jackie isn't just talking with lawyers," said Betty the other day when questioned as to where Jackie had gone after leaving the set where she was working. "He earns a living. It isn't as much as he used to earn, of course, but it keeps the young Coogan family. Not one cent of my salary goes into the house fund—Jackie wouldn't stand for it. Just to keep the record straight, Betty knew Jackie was a "poor boy" long before they married.

"While we were going together, Jackie had very little money," Betty said. "Usually he would take me to dinner with his parents. Once in a while his mother would ask, 'Where are you going after dinner?' Jackie would answer, 'Well, we thought we might go to the Coconut Grove,' and his mother would then ask, 'What will you use for money?' So we went for automobile rides instead."

"A year before we married his mother took me aside and told me that if I thought I was going to be the bride of a rich boy I was badly mistaken, and that Jackie was not going to get a cent except what he earned himself after he was 21. She repeated this at frequent intervals, so I think it is pretty plain that Jackie and I knew exactly what our circumstances were."

LONDON CABINET SUPPORTS FRANCE TO BAR NAZI COUP

Czech Situation Declared To Be 'Very Confused, Extremely Critical' After Urgent Session.

MUSSOLINI URGES HITLER TO GO EASY

France Says Britain and Russia Ready To Use Armies If Necessary.

LONDON, May 22.—(AP)—The entire British cabinet met for an hour today in an emergency session to put the whole weight of the government behind British-French moves to block a German march into Czechoslovakia.

After the urgent session, informed persons said "the situation is very confused and extremely critical."

Prime Minister Chamberlain will make a statement in the house of commons tomorrow and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax will go before the house of lords—both expected to emphasize Britain's role as a peace-maker between Berlin and Praha.

European peace is at the mercy of any incident," a reliable source asserted.

The tenor of the statements following the cabinet meeting tended once more to heighten anxiety after a day of relaxation over the single, reassuring fact that Adolf Hitler had not struck yet.

Britain dispatched instructions to her representatives in Germany and Czechoslovakia to exert every effort toward peaceful settlement.

In Praha, Minister Basil C. Newton was told to impress on the Czechoslovak government the importance of avoiding incidents and of a step toward compromise with Czechoslovakia's Nazis.

Rejects Compromise.
However, Czechoslovakia's militant minority tonight refused again to negotiate with the government over autonomy demands.

(The Sudeten German party, issued a communique in the war-torn Czech capital declining any negotiations "under the existing unconstitutional situation.")

In Berlin, Ambassador Sir Neville Henderson was asked to urge the need of patience and moderation in the German press.

The tension in London, decreased hourly with the growing conviction that British-French "stop signs" had turned Hitler to a bloodless course to get what he wants for Czechoslovakia's 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans.

Chamberlain conferred with Foreign Secretary Halifax and Sir Robert Vansittart, chief diplomatic adviser to the cabinet.

Many persons believed Chamberlain already had told Hitler, through diplomats both here and in Berlin, that Germany was trying to intimidate Czechoslovakia with an implied threat of armed

REBEL BOMBS HIT BRITISH VESSEL, WOUND 3 IN CREW

Deck of Ship Is Badly Damaged as Insurgents Rain Projectiles on Valencia; Sagunto Raided.

VALENCIA, Spain, May 22.—(UP)—Three members of the crew of the British merchant ship Penchames were wounded seriously today when the vessel was bombed during an insurgent air raid on Valencia.

The decks of the British ship were badly damaged by the insurgent bombs.

(Lloyd's shipping register does not list a British ship named Penchames).

After raiding Valencia and the near-by working class suburb of El Grau the planes sped up the coast to Sagunto, where heavy damage was reported but there was no loss of life.

LOYALISTS LAUNCH
SUDDEN OFFENSIVE
HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier), May 22.—(AP)—Spanish government forces launched a sudden offensive today on the almost forgotten Catalanian front in northeastern Spain where heavy inroads were reported on insurgent lines.

The government forces lashed out against the Insurgents at Tremp, hydroelectric power center 95 miles northwest of Barcelona and at Balaguer, 25 miles south of Tremp.

Dispatches from Barcelona, government Spain's provisional capital, said the offensive netted consistent gains. Insurgent commanders disputed this, declaring the attackers were repulsed with heavy losses.

The government's Catalanian offensive came to life as insurgent forces were running into heavy government artillery fire on the Teruel-to-sea front in east central Spain.

Beginning at dawn today, the government fighters cut loose with a terrific artillery barrage at Tremp and Balaguer.

Under cover of the barrage, large fleets of tanks smashed their way to insurgent positions. They were followed by waves of infantry.

The couple spent Saturday night at Branham's home. Late yesterday afternoon, the young wife told her husband she wanted to go home to "talk some more with mother." Branham wanted to accompany her, but the girl said she preferred to go alone.

Conversation with the mother followed, during which Mrs. Branham had known the young woman approximately two years. The ceremony was performed at

VOTES ARE CAST UNDER BAYONETS, GUNS ATOP ROOFS

Communist, Other Left-wing Parties Also Acquire Additional Posts; Balloting Is Peaceful.

PRAHA EXPECTED TO FILL DEMANDS

Government Appears Firm in Intention To Deal Only With Residents.

PRAHA, May 22.—(UP)—Communist and other Left-wing parties made strong gains today when Czechoslovakia's voters, casting their ballots in municipal elections under the bayonets of the army, answered 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans whose autonomy demands have carried this post-war democracy perilously close to war.

The first of a series of elections for municipal councilmen was staged in 1,000 districts, while the country took on an appearance of martial law with guns mounted on the roofs of municipal buildings, but there were no major outbreaks.

Tension Relaxes.
There was a marked relaxation in tension which 24 hours ago seemed to threaten war involving not only Germany and Czechoslovakia but perhaps all Europe.

The German-Czech frontier, sealed as troops, moved up on both sides in warlike array Saturday, was reported open at many points.

A large measure of the Sudeten demands, one of which calls for autonomy in Czechoslovakian districts where their people are in the majority, were expected to be granted shortly in view of returns from Sunday's municipal elections. The Sudeten German party scored overwhelming victories in areas dominated by its members.

"We Will Fight."
The government appeared firm, however, in its intention to deal only with Germans resident in Czechoslovakia, warning that "we will fight if a single German soldier crosses the border."

In the western Sudeten areas of Bohemia, where members of the German minority are expected to use the elections as a sort of plebiscite on their autonomy demands, the Germans greatly increased their representation on municipal councils by mass turnouts at the polls.

In the large Sudeten areas the German vote was far greater than it was in the 1935 parliamentary elections, despite daylong rain.

In Praha—the weather vane of the voting because sentiment is more evenly divided here—returns from half the precincts late tonight showed gains for the Czech left wing parties, including Klement Gottwald's Communists, and heavy losses for the right wing opposition.

The so-called National League led by Jiri Stritbyr, whose election

Mother of Slain Sweetheart Acts To Save Killer's Life

Boy Who 'Lost His Nerve' in Suicide Pact Faces Court Today.

NEW YORK, May 22.—(UP)—Two heartbroken women—one the mother of 18-year-old Charlotte Mathieson, killed by her boyfriend in a "suicide pact," the other the mother of 16-year-old Donald Carroll Jr., who killed her—will join tomorrow in an effort to save the boy from the electric chair.

The two mothers, Mrs. Fred Mathieson and Mrs. Donald Carroll, who have known each other since their children became sweethearts two years ago, said tonight they will sit together during the trial.

Hopes for Acquittal. "I must show them I have nothing in my heart but love for Donald," the slain girl's mother said. "I hope he will be freed. Why should I hate him now when I loved him before?"

The two mothers have gone each day to the gray stone Queen's county jail, where Donald has been held without bail since he was arrested two months ago, said tonight the bloodstained bedroom where his dead sweetheart lay.

The boy, pale and frightened, repeats monotonously: "I will tell them what happened—that's all I can do. I am not afraid."

The story Donald told police when they came to his home in response to his telephone call, was this:

He and Charlotte had been "going together" since they were in high school. A year after they decided they would be married, she told him she was about to become a mother.

"Several days later," Donald's statement to police read, "she thought she had better kill herself. We planned a suicide pact in my home, although Charlotte kept insisting that only she should die."

On the morning of March 24, Donald placed the muzzle of a gun to her heart and shot her. After that he "lost his nerve," and instead of killing himself, called the police.

Mrs. Carroll, mother of four sons, young-looking and pretty, walked from the jailhouse with Mrs. Mathieson.

"I haven't any idea what we can do—except be there to give Donald courage," she said.

"It seems impossible that this could have happened," she said with a sigh.

Mrs. Mathieson is equally grief-stricken. Her husband went on the radio last month with a public plea in Donald's behalf. "They were both innocent and ignorant," he said. "It seems far better to give this boy a chance to right conditions by useful living, and replace in our hearts the place left vacant by the death of our daughter."

HALF-MILLION LOSS LOOMS FOR COUNTY

Commissioners Launch Study Today of Crisis Created By Homestead Act.

Fulton county commissioners today will launch a series of conferences on the county's financial condition designed to solve problems created by possibility of a $500,000 loss in revenue. Commission Chairman J. A. Ragsdale announced yesterday.

County auditors will make a preliminary report on the county's finances tomorrow, but the budget for the coming year will be held up, pending the completion of the tax digest early in August, it was said.

Ragsdale said the county is faced with the loss of a half million dollars yearly in revenue from the new homestead exemption tax act.

Commissioners will seek to find additional revenue sources and to work out plans for operating until the budget is completed.

Later in the week conferences will be held with a citizens' advisory committee, composed of 18 businessmen named by the commission to help work out the financial problems.

George F. Longino, who returned early yesterday from Washington, said.

Longino also said that conferences with federal and state prison officials regarding the proposed construction of a model prison system in Fulton will be held "in a few days."

He said the move to obtain federal funds to build the prison system and to construct a nine-story annex to the present courthouse was getting "favorable" attention of Congressman Robert Ramspeck in Washington.

Architects already have been authorized to draw plans for the annex for submission to Miss Gay B. Shepperson, Georgia WPA administrator. Cost of the annex has been estimated at between $800,000 and $1,000,000. Methods of obtaining a federal grant will be worked out following the prison system conferences, it was said, when definite plans on cost of the prison project probably will be drawn.

MAYOR WILL SPEAK AT ELLIJAH SCHOOL

Mayor William B. Hartfield will speak at commencement exercises of the Gilmer County High school tonight in Ellijah, Ga., it was announced yesterday.

The mayor said a committee of citizens came to him recently and requested him to make the address. He will go to Ellijah this morning, he said.

HARLAN 'TERROR' TRIAL RESUMES

U. S. Hopes To Bolster Authority of NLRB.

LONDON, Ky., May 22.—(P)—The United States government will begin this week the presentation of evidence it hopes will convict 44 Harlan countians on a charge of terrorizing coal miners to prevent their joining unions. The government believes conviction of the defendants—22 coal company executives, 22 former and present Harlan county law officers and 20 corporations indicted jointly—would establish a broad principle of law giving teeth to the National Labor Relations Act.

Twelve jurors have been approved, but there remains the selection of two alternates.

AIR BUREAU CHIEF WILL SPEAK HERE

Atlanta Joins With Nation in Observing Foreign Trade Week.

Dennis Mulligan, chief of the Bureau of Air Commerce, will be the principal speaker here this week as Atlanta joins with the nation in observing Foreign Trade Week, it was announced yesterday.

Mulligan will speak at a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the Atlanta Athletic Club. His address is to be broadcast over station WGST.

The Atlanta Foreign Trade and Travel Club and the Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring observance of Foreign Trade Week here while national observance is being sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

To Emphasize Relation. "The purpose of the National Foreign Trade Week is to direct attention to the foreign trade of the United States, its national importance and its relationship to domestic industry and trade," said George A. Mansour Jr., chairman of the National Foreign Trade Week committee in Atlanta.

"The remarkable rise in American export trade, both in quantity and value during the period of the recent recession in domestic business, has been a factor of such importance in the employment of labor and capital that there is a great public consciousness of the significance of foreign trade to the welfare and prosperity of the United States," Mansour said.

In addition to Mulligan's appearance, Albert Staton, manager of the Pan-American division of the Coca-Cola Export Company, will address the Kiwanis Club at its luncheon tomorrow.

W. H. Schroeder, district manager of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, pointed out many nationally known speakers will be on the air chains during the week, recounting the history of American shipping and telling of this country's export gains.

The Atlanta Foreign Trade and Travel Club has devoted 18 years to the promotion of export trade and foreign trade, Mansour said.

"A greater Atlanta through a greater world trade is its slogan."

Many other civic organizations will participate this week in observing National Foreign Trade Week, Mansour said.

CITY TAX RECEIPTS EXCEED 1937 MARK

City tax collections are running ahead of the mark set last year, Charles L. Mathews, chief deputy tax collector, announced Saturday.

A total of $3,175,000 had been received through May 21, 1938, as compared with $3,149,758 through the entire month of May last year. Mathews also pointed out that this year's collections do not include taxes on intangibles, such as stocks, bonds and money, which will come in later. Household and kitchen furniture is exempted this year while the 1937 figure includes taxes on these items.

Mayor Hartfield recently reported that receipts from other sources are falling. He said industrial users of water are below anticipations and that receipts from recorder's court fines are far behind.

Agriculture Alone Can't Pay This $85,000,000 Tax Bill!

The cost of government in Georgia for 1938—state, county and municipal—will be approximately $85,000,000.

That sum, which must be raised through taxation, is more than the value of Georgia's entire cotton crop, including the seed.

It is more than the combined value of Georgia's cotton and corn crops, and about three-fifths of the value of all crops.

Georgia is an agricultural state, two-thirds of our population is rural, but agriculture alone could not foot the state's tax bill. And agriculture doesn't need to do it, because the businesses of Georgia pay a big share of it.

Georgia, though rural, has long pursued policies favorable to the growth and development of business. And that policy has returned big dividends to rural Georgia in better roads, better schools, better and more adequate public services—paid for in large part by the tax contributions of business. Without the tax payments of Georgia's mills, factories, banks, stores, railroads, public utilities, and all the other elements represented by the word BUSINESS, taxes would be an impossible and crushing burden on the back of agriculture.

What helps business helps the farmer because business lifts much of the tax load from his shoulders. What hurts business hurts the farmer because the burden then falls back on the land.

In this, as in other things, business and agriculture have a common interest and what helps one helps both.

RAIL CRISIS GROWS

The time for realism and fact-finding in the railroad muddle has arrived. With the roads planning to reduce wages 15 per cent, and the brotherhoods countering with a threat of a nation-wide strike, the whole tangled problem of the primary transportation system of the United States must be solved, unless the nation condones these recurrent crises which affect all other business.

A nation-wide strike would be nothing short of tragic. Innocent persons would be the sufferers. Yet, can labor be blamed? During the last depression the wage-earners co-operated with management in keeping the unwieldy structures going. The wages are now restored and in some cases are higher than in 1929, yet immediately revenues drop sharply, labor again is asked to carry the burden in large measure. The reduction in pay would total over the nation some $250,000,000.

This at a time when maintenance of the spending power of the country is a primary requisite to a climb in the prosperity indices. The withdrawal of this purchasing power of the working man in turn will affect, seriously, the industries on which the roads are dependent for traffic, in their turn again affecting the railroads. The vicious spiral will drag many other industries into its vortex. Multiplied through industry the ultimate effect is easy to see.

So the railroad problem calls for immediate action. As now constituted the roads stand as a dislocation of the national economy intimately involving the paramount question of distribution.

That congressional leaders recognize the threat brought about by the wage slash order is shown in the return to committee of the emergency rail loan bill which had been before the senate for action. The loans were designed to keep men at work, and to enable the roads to carry on until more definite action could be taken. Yet, apparently, the railroads want the money without carrying out their share of the bargain. Some railroads, of which one is the Southern, have given evidence of a faith in the future by orders of new equipment, yet all these roads, willing or not, join in the wage slash proposal. New equipment will not roll off industry, partially dependent on the earnings of railroad workers, cannot sell the goods to be transported to the marts of trade.

It cannot be said that loans to the roads are not necessary. But a majority of the operating companies have run their course of debt, and now management itself has thrown the situation into a stalemate which cries for something more permanent than loans. These now would be but more water poured into the gaping maw.

The solution to the impasse does not rest in the wage slashes and more loans. Most roads today cannot meet their debt service. Yet, they must continue paying a heavy tax bill, not only to the federal government and state governments, but in many instances exorbitant sums to small counties. These last, multiplied, run into an astounding total. On the other hand, newspapers recently announced that a railroad company had paid a $5 annual dividend. Investigation proved the dividend payer was not an operating unit, but the holder of a franchise which has run for more than 100 years. Here is a group of persons holding something entirely intangible, milking the operating road of vital revenues. Multiply this, and it also will run into an astounding total.

These and many other factors have builded one of the most complicated and fascinating problems of modern times. Freight rate increases and passenger fare increases have not been the answer. Both have driven revenue to the highways and to the water. Wage slashes will not be the answer. Yet, it is imperative that some solid foundation be provided for the future of the railroads, which are and must always be the nation's primary transportation factor, necessary not only in peace but for the national defense.

No longer can congress, the management of the roads and railroad labor escape facts. Action must be taken, for the protection of all the people of the United States, which will relieve an intolerable situation. There can be little doubt that the revisions will be radical. This apparently cannot be avoided. But the public right to an efficient railroad service cannot be disregarded by any of the elements involved. The situation cries for early, definite action.

THAT GOVERNMENT RADIO STATION

The announcement of a plan to set up a powerful government radio station was promptly followed by the introduction of one bill in the senate and two in the house to bring the idea into quick reality. There will probably be others. Senator McCade, who introduced one of the bills, naturally wants the station in California. Congressmen Maverick, of Texas, and Green, of Florida, who introduced the other bills, of course can think of no better locations than their home states. The usual lobbying for such a juicy political plum has already begun.

It seems, therefore, if the station is built—although the actual need for it is rather vague—its location will probably be left in the hands of the log rollers rather than under the jurisdiction of radio engineers, where it belongs.

The sudden urge to build the station stems from the paternal instincts of a few fatherly politicians who fear the "helpless little nations" of South America are about to be swallowed by the demon Fascism. A daily deluge of propaganda is to be let loose, officially, from the United States to save the southern neighbor from the shackles of a dictator.

One practical objection to this, however, if the politicians care for practical things, is that much Latin-American business is in the hands of German and Italian businessmen. A daily cargo of propaganda from Washington would, doubtless, be quite detrimental to the nation's business, especially at a time when the good neighbor spirit is supposed to be coming from other connected with the same administration.

A more realistic reason for erecting the station might be found in the hostile attitude of certain political leaders, such as Senator Minon, toward the press. If they feel they are not getting a square deal from the newspapers, although there isn't the slightest ground for such feeling, what would be more convenient than utilizing the government radio to arouse public sentiment against the press? This system of muzzling free speech and a free press has worked out to perfection in the Fascist countries of Europe. Paradoxically, they will become Fascists under the pretext of curing Fascism!

What, it may be asked, is to prevent the use of private broadcasting systems for all legitimate government purposes? Is it to be contended they do not provide a satisfactory outlet to the people? No. There is no fault to be found, as a whole, with the present system of broadcasting. It serves its purpose well. It is open to one side of a question as freely as to the other. But that is just where the rub comes when political control of a government-owned station is put into operation. The temptation, the opportunity, will always be present to take an unfair advantage in almost any controversy.

Private broadcasters also seem to suspect something rotten hidden away in the plan. Will the government go into the broadcasting business in competition with them? If the proposed station is located in California, for example, would it not be desirable on occasion to hook up all the little two-by-four stations between there and Washington into one gigantic federal chain?

The good, if there is any good in it, is far outweighed by the bad. The idea should be abandoned.

ADVENTURE LIVES TODAY

In a world in which adventure has largely been replaced by the humdrum, it is pleasant to contemplate that men still seek to push back the last frontiers, bringing to all, vicariously, the thrill of conquest of the mundane.

Into three widely separated dark places today go men to snatch their hard-earned secrets. To the north, along the Arctic fringe, the MacGregor expedition seeks a land long legendary. No evidence of its existence has yet been found, but in dangerous, lonely flight, man has winged over the frozen fastnesses seeking to wrest a clue which will lead to its discovery.

On the border of Tibet, in itself a fabulous land, an English expedition is again attempting a final scaling of the heights of a hitherto inviolate peak. For years man has sought to attain a mastery over its highest crags. Time after time men have tried in vain to reach the top, and time after time Nature has battered them back. But man is not to be denied. Again he tolls up, ever up, in an attempt to win out over elements with the stubbornness characteristic of the Anglo-Saxon race.

And off again to the south soon goes Sir Hubert Wilkins. Foiled in his latest adventure, an adventure of mercy undertaken to rescue the Soviet Polar fliers, he cannot be content with a hard-won reputation as an explorer. The unmapped reaches of Antarctica call, and a ship will soon breast southern seas taking him and Lincoln Ellsworth into a land where danger lies hidden in a cloak of white. A frailer craft then will take him into the skies in a search for the secrets of a section no man has ever seen. Thousands of miles will he wing over the desolate stretches, with Death riding at his elbow and Luck, all must hope, watching benevolently.

Still others push through lush Africa in the eternal quest for the things man does not yet know. Through a few daring, restless men the world once more may live in adventure. They are the white knights of our civilization.

The society to get Lily Pons married to that musician will disband June 26, if all goes well, and reorganize to grapple with the Garbo question.

It is a Canadian, back from the Congo, who tells of primitive tribes scaring their children with stories of civilization.

Editorial of the Day

RECIPE FOR RECOVERY

(From The Philadelphia Inquirer.)
The longest speech in congress on the issue of government or private spending for recovery contains less meat than Representative Bruce Barton's summing-up in two sentences:

"Put one man to work on the WPA and you have given one low-priced job. Put one man to work on the automobile assembly line and you have created 10 or 15 or 30 well-paid jobs."

Industry will employ more men when it is freed from confiscatory taxes, government competition and oppressive, hostile, destructive regulation.

When will that time come? Only the administration in Washington can supply the answer.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

CORCORAN IS IDEA MAN WASHINGTON, May 22.—It's the common theory that Thomas G. Corcoran is the New Deal means youth at the prow and Communism at the helm. The theory is pure nonsense. Corcoran is a genial, untiring, remarkably intelligent and reasonably disinterested fellow, whose fertile mind and pleasant personality make him the perfect idea man for President Roosevelt. And, as it happens, he is neither excessively young nor excessively radical.

Lately, the New Deal has been moving leftward again, in the anti-monopoly program, in a new and more aggressive political strategy, and in other ways. Accordingly, the word is going 'round that Tom Corcoran's fine Pawtucket hand is once more at work. In view of all the drivel talked and written about Corcoran, this looks like a good time to see what sort of fellow he really is.

The notion of Tom Corcoran's extreme youth no doubt derives from his boyish and unassuming manner and his odd chubbiness. At first glance, he calls to mind a rather mature chub boy. Look closer and you see a stocky, short man, nearly 40, with large eyes, a brilliant smile and a shock of graying black hair. The most striking thing about him is the impression he gives of immense mental and physical energy.

He has not the appearance, and he does not lead the life of a commissar. He and his brilliant partner, Ben Cohen, probably work harder than any other two men in Washington. Their job is to prepare plans, draw bills, draft speeches and watch the carrying out of policies for the President, whom they call "The Boss."

Yet, in spite of their manifold duties, they yield no sinister, and determining influence. They are not the minds behind the throne. They are merely very useful to the President, because they express more ably than any others the most important of the many competing political viewpoints within the New Deal.

"CORCORAN & COHEN, INC." Corcoran is the front man for the team, and by far the busiest. The telephone in his bleak office at the RFC rings all day long. In the short space of 24 hours, he can cram three or four serious conferences in weighty matters, with his "boss," with Cohen, with other influential men in the administration; half a dozen minor chores; a long talk with one of the many earnest young men for whom he has found places in the government; a lunch with an old Harvard friend; and one of the sudden trips to the movies which he finds it relaxing to make at odd hours. Except for the movies, he gets his only rest on long skiing trips.

Both he and Ben Cohen live as simply as possible. The downtown apartment they share is Spartan in its bareness. Corcoran has no taste for luxury. If he had, he could have gratified it long ago by taking one of the many hugely profitable offers made him by large law firms and big industrial companies. Or he could dine out in the greatest pomp every evening of the week, for there is much curiosity about him in Washington.

Instead, he stays at home and works. He likes good fun, and he is an excellent parlor musician, a singer of old songs, and an energetic player of the piano and the accordion. If he takes an evening off from work, it is to amuse himself in this gentlemanly fashion with a few cronies in the New Deal, or to indulge his passion for vaulting, intellectual talk with some such man as his great friend and patron, Felix Frankfurter.

ENTER FELIX FRANKFURTER For so interesting and powerful a man, Corcoran has a singularly brief history. He was born in Pawtucket, of an Irish family in modest circumstances. His youth was no different from any other, except that his brilliant mind earned him a first-class education. The education ended, importantly, at the Harvard Law School, where he came under the influence of Felix Frankfurter.

It was Frankfurter who sent him to serve the great Justice Holmes as his secretary. And it was under Holmes' influence that Corcoran became preoccupied with public affairs. The relationship between the two was close and affectionate. The aged justice called his young secretary "Sonny" and treated him as a son. Corcoran repaid the compliment by giving Holmes all his admiration and attachment. Holmes is still his chief hero.

After his time with Holmes came service as Joseph Cotton's junior in the New York law office of Cotton, Franklin, and then a return to Washington, to a post in the RFC. Frankfurter, who got Raymond Moley to let Corcoran and Cohen draft the securities and exchange acts, really started Corcoran on his New Deal career. From that first task for the White House, the team worked upward, acquiring more and more responsibility, until they reached their present place.

A FIGHTING CRUSADER Such is Corcoran. You may still ask what he does. The answer is that he believes religiously in a theory of government much like that expounded by Justice Brandeis. He is no collectivist—far from it—but he detests and fears bigness in business, and he believes that the time has come when the people's government, not large business, to determine the national course. His work in Washington is a crusade to put his theory into practice. He is a fighter, and a ruthless one to sacrifice much for his cause. He loves power; all men do. But he loves it to use for the ends he conceives to be wise and healthy, and not because it satisfies his personal ambition for great office or high place. Probably the New Deal's policies would be the same even if he did not exist. Grant that, and you must admit that the government is fortunate to have unusual talent and a mind to help chart its future.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES

It's hard to make a dollar do
The work of two, my dear,
But skimp dollars stretch for you
Because you add good cheer.

Times Are Changing.
To one who sits and tries to observe and to analyze the changing trends in social custom, in economic practice and in governmental idea, there comes inevitably a feeling of worry over the future of the individual, the nation and the race.

For so many of the things tried today, that vitally affect the lives of millions of people are so frankly experimental and, even, daring in that experiment.

There is a hankering for the older ways, with the feeling that they were the practices of security, that they knew where we stood, what to do and what the outcome of given action would be.

Mind you, I don't say that such conditions actually existed a quarter-century or more ago. But many of us, in retrospect, are likely to think they did.

The Great Crimes Of Modern Theory.

To my mind, the two outstanding evils of modern social theories are that they are killing the divine impulse to charity in the heart of the American people and they are destroying the urge to enthusiastic work and determination to advance in life.

Taking the first of those two first:

Nowadays, when problems of poverty, of human misery and of charity arise in a community there is a growing tendency to belittle them, to cast them mentally aside as unimportant. This is because of the feeling, both conscious and sub-conscious, that the federal government, through its relief organizations, is taking care of all the needy. Is seeing that "no one goes hungry." This, of course, is not true. But so persistently has the general public read of billions expended on "relief" that it is inevitable the natural human reaction of sympathy should be dulled, and under a feeling that, with all that money, the WPA or some federal agency takes care of everybody. Hence, sad though it be, the strong sentiment of charity which used to be such a marked trait of the collective American character, seems to be, in some degree at least, slowly atrophying.

Workers Losing Independent Urge.

For the second evil, blame first of all the constant efforts by representatives of organized labor, by politicians and by others to define limitations for hours of work and amount of wages.

It may be extremely nice publicly to advocate a work hour of more than eight hours per diem, even though it is no good on the stump—whether it is through press or radio or platform, to preach a minimum wage for everyone.

But no ambitious individual yet got ahead in the world whose chief worries were that he should not serve his employer one minute over his specified, contracted time, or that he should receive one nickel less than the law permits in his weekly pay envelope.

There is much talk of the new leisure. Men of a past generation got to the top by working as long as there was work available to be done and letting the leisure time—if any—take care of itself.

The picture of Lincoln poring over his law books by the light of a fire, the thought of Franklin experimenting through the hours of the night and of Edison contenting himself with four hours sleep out of the 24, so he might have longer time to spend working in his beloved laboratory, do not jibe with fussiness about hours of labor.

Many a man who climbed to the top in days gone by did so only because he worked at whatever his hand found to do, for whatever he could earn and devoted all his available thinking time to the search for new work, increased ability and a greater knowledge of the things he needed to know.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.
From The Constitution of Friday, May 23, 1913:

"In the closing hour of the Southern Presbyterian assembly of 1913, which came to an end Thursday afternoon at the North Avenue church, a plan was born that points toward the eventual consolidation of all the Presbyterian churches of America in a 'Greater Presbyterian Congress'—formed directly on the plan of the congress of the United States, with a senate and a house of representatives supreme in authority over all Presbyterian affairs in the country."

And Fifty Years Ago.
From The Constitution of Wednesday, May 23, 1888:

"AUGUSTA, Ga., May 21.—(Special.) It is rumored on the streets here today that a large syndicate, already interested in southern roads, is endeavoring to purchase the charter of the Augusta and Chattanooga Air-line."

FAIR ENOUGH

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Attention, NEW YORK, May 20.—Confidential memorandum from the general officer commanding II Duce Mussolini's invincible legions in Spain:

Duce! As commanding officer of the irresistible hordes who have been enforcing our inflexible will in Spain I have the honor to submit recommendations based on the practical lessons of the glorious events at Guadalajara which I trust I may, without immodesty, describe as the Little Caporetto.

First, I earnestly recommend, that, in the interests of economy and efficiency, your invincible legions henceforth be armed with wooden or paper-mache rifles, tin pea-shooters or some other weapon of purely nominal type and of the cheapest materials and construction.

The piece at present issued to your valiant Black Shirts is an expensive and dangerous encumbrance. It is too costly to be thrown away in vast numbers when your heroes start advancing to the rear with the utmost rapidity and too heavy to permit the development of maximum speed. Moreover, our enemies have not been above seizing them where they have been discarded and shooting our conquering legions in the rear—the act of a cowardly foe, to be sure, but characteristic of the disorderly rabble which still rejects the heroic glories of Fascism.

Second, I urge, Oh Duce, that our general staff begin experimenting with roads made of cork or some springy composition used in the construction of indoor running tracks. Runners performing on this type of track can save one-tenth of a second in every hundred yards. True, our contemptible enemies will try to retreat on our heels, but they will be running in hobnailed field shoes of clumsy type, whereas I recommend that the servants of your irresistible determination be equipped with featherweight track shoes.

Moreover, Oh Duce, I propose that our engineers prepare a variety of misleading highway signs, have so many posted at intervals along the line of our dashing charge to the rear. These signs, or markers, should read, "Il Duce's irresistible hosts went this way ten minutes ago; weather clear, track fast; going like hell!" "No use pursuing Il Duce's unconquerable this way; they turned sharp left;" and "Pedestrian traffic forbidden."

Sheet Armor Third, I strongly suggest, Oh Duce, that there be issued to your victorious legions a stout but lightweight sheet of body armor to be worn inside the trousers, astern, as our favorite strategy exposes our heroes to wounds in this sector. Needless to say, it is bad for our prestige to have so many wounded going around wearing this portion of their anatomy in slings.

Fourth, I recommend the organization of a fly-paper company as a unit of each regiment to unroll sheets of sticky paper on the highways, after our indomitable have passed by, to retard the forward movement of the enemy.

Fifty Oh Duce, I call attention to the fact that our comrades in the Rome-Berlin axis are now sitting right on top of us and that they are exceedingly tough mugs, who have sworn to annihilate all their minorities and therefore must be very strong. We have 1,000 captives, Heines in our Tyrol one of these days.

When this happens your invincible ranks will not only need all their speed but should be provided with adequate springboard facilities at Brindisi, on the Adriatic, or at points on the Ionian sea. With proper facilities and adequate training they should be able to dive clear over into Albania or Greece or half-way to Libya in one graceful leap.

Steps should be taken to teach them to shout jubilantly the victory cry of "Duce a noi!" in mid-air as they execute this phase of their charge.

Limburger And Hot Dogs Sixth, I propose that our service of supply keep on hand at all times for this emergency a large store of Munich beer, weinerwurst and Limburger to be placed at strategic points in the rear of our advance as a means of retarding the disorganized retreats of the Nazis until the cockney Tommies of London can get down to head them off again, as in the glorious days of Caporetto.

And, finally, Oh Duce, I urgently propose that you use your influence to compel the civilized nations of the world to employ silent gunboats and shells, as the present equipment makes a terribly loud noise—"Bang! Bang! Bang!" all the time—and nerves your invincible legions so nervous that they are not able to do full justice to your inflexible will.

Oh Duce! Kootchey-kootchey, Duce! (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

We Don't Notice How Shabby Our Own Furniture Looks Because We Are Used To It

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

In an old town, not too large to have neighbors, the age at which a man and a woman begin to seem old is determined by different processes.

If the woman came to town after reaching maturity, her age remains a mystery. But if she grew up in the community, no art can hide the number of her years. If a stranger comments on her girlish appearance, or guesses her age at thirty, some old friend will say: "I went to school with Nellie. I don't know her exact age, but I'm 39 and she graduated the year before I did." Which means that Nellie is nearing 50.

But while a woman seems old because she lives among old friends, a man seems old because he doesn't. If he grew up in the community, to those who once knew him as "Skinny" he remains always "one of the boys." The others reach middle age without realizing it, and since they still feel young and still regard themselves as young, it never occurs to them that he has grown old.

But let a man of their age first appear in town when he is nearing 40, and before a decade has passed they are calling him "Old Man Brown." He is something foreign, something apart. They can stand off and get a look at him. Every year of his age seems as distinct as the white in his hair.

With the best will in the world we cannot judge ourselves as we judge the stranger. "Me and mine" remain forever free of faults; "thou and thine" forever in need of correction.

This inability to see the truth that is too near home is responsible for two of our greatest handicaps—our contentment in ignorance, and our loyalty to a leader who takes the wrong road. The ignorant man has the normal supply of self-respect, if not more. He may be larger, stronger, handsomer and more popular than men who know more, and these advantages content him. He is scarcely conscious of his ignorance. As a child in a mountain valley is unaware of the far horizons beyond the enclosing hills, so a man's ignorance limits his vision and makes him incapable of realizing how much lies beyond. He won't try to get more knowledge because he can't see how much he lacks.

The ignorant man is equally blind because their leader has become a personal possession. Having adopted him because he seemed right, their self-respect demands that he remain right. They can't think him wrong without confessing themselves wrong, and it isn't in nature to see wrongness in themselves. He is a rare man who can see reason if he must first swallow his pride.

REPRESENTING GEORGIA

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The drive which has been made by the Georgia congressional delegation over the last week for speedy payments of last year's soil conservation benefit checks is beginning to bear fruit.

Following a series of half a dozen conferences with I. W. Dugan, director of the southern division, AAA, Representative Paul Brown, of Elberton, announced here today checks were being sent out by the Athens, Ga., extension service just as fast as a day and night shift of extra Department of Agriculture workers and clerks can prepare them for mailing.

"If our farmers are to buy fertilizer and make other preparations for early summer crops," Brown told Director Dugan, "these benefit checks are a vital and necessary concomitant."

Dugan, a Georgia boy himself, who knows agricultural conditions in the state first hand, promised Representative Brown that checks "will be gotten out very soon."

Checks Total These checks, $9,000,000 which will total more than $9,000,000 for the state of Georgia, are being paid by the federal government to farmers who have conformed to the crop control program under the soil conservation act of 1936. Payments are now being made on the 1937 crop.

Payments to Georgia farmers under the 1936 program total $10,680,000, which was considerably more than what state farmers will receive this year because of the cotton acreage expansion during 1937.

Representative Carl Vinson, dean of Georgia's congressional delegation, has just taken up with state officials the proposition to make an application to the Public Works Administration for the complete rebuilding of all prison structures at Milledgeville, which house female inmates.

New Buildings He also pointed out that the proposed building program in the state would include the making of much-needed repairs as well as the construction of new buildings at the Milledgeville sanatorium.

And that the Georgia board of state regents' proposal for a new building program for the state university and branches would assure the construction of two additional dormitories at the State College for Women at Milledgeville.

"This program," Representative Vinson declared, "will involve the expenditure of several million dollars of PWA and WPA money and funds which will be realized from the discounting of W. & A. rentals."

While the state's construction program for improvements in Georgia eleemosynary institutions will involve a total expenditure of approximately $6,500,000, Vinson has been concentrating on the program as it would affect his home town of Milledgeville.

Representative Robert Ram-

mond said he was getting so tired of the peaches and watermelons and other crops through out the state. If we can ever get cotton up, it doesn't need so much rain, and even corn will go a long time without suffering at the time of the year if you can get enough moisture to bring it up. My mother always told us that the Lord knew what He was doing and that He would send rain when we needed it. Right. And I hope before Monday morning that He will send it.

BORAH PROPOSES SINGLE TAXATION OF EXEMPT ISSUES

Urges U. S. To Levy on Income From Its Securities, States Tax Likewise.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(P)—Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, advocated today a system of single taxation of income from public securities.

Under his proposal, the federal government would levy upon income from its own bonds and the states on income from their own securities.

Borah said this would be a "simple solution" of the problem of tax-exempt securities, which has engaged the attention of President Roosevelt and many members of congress. The President has suggested legislation to permit the state and federal governments to tax income from each other's securities as well as from their own.

Contending that a constitutional amendment would be necessary to carry out such a policy, Borah said in an interview that he thought single taxation of securities would supply needed additional governmental revenue and at the same time would close a loophole through which the funds of many investors escaped taxation.

LIGHT and SHADOW

Perhaps one of the greatest causes of eye fatigue is glare strain, caused by the frequent inability of the eyes to cope with extreme light contrasts.

Eyes that need glasses are usually more than normally sensitive to light. Proper lenses remove this strain and improve vision.

To know if your eyes are all that they should be—have your eyes examined.

'ENEMY' TO MARCH ON AMERICA'S GOLD

3,000 Lie in Wait at Oglethorpe Ready to Drive On Fort Knox.

FORT OGLETHORPE, Ga., May 22.—(P)—An "enemy" force of 3,000 troops with the latest mechanized cavalry equipment was concentrated here tonight awaiting orders that will send it at 7 a. m. tomorrow on a 400-mile march northward with Fort Knox, Ky., and America's billions of gold as its target.

The "enemy" is the seventh cavalry brigade, United States army, commanded by Brigadier General Daniel Van Voorhis, of Fort Knox.

Lieutenant Colonel Willis D. Crittenger, plans and training officer of the mechanized brigade in the present maneuvers, said the "enemy" force sent planes of the twelfth observation squadron as far north as the Ohio river today and the pilots reported that advance scouts of the defending force were noted and they believed the defending army was moving south over several roads in the Indianapolis, Dayton (Ohio) area.

Colonel Crittenger said the seventh cavalry brigade would receive orders from General Van Voorhis early tomorrow to move at once on Nashville, from which point it will launch its attack on Fort Knox.

Here's What Remains of Talmadge's Once Famous Fish Pond

All that remains of Eugene Talmadge's fish pond on his Monroe county farm is shown in the above photograph. The once famous "$10,000 dam," weakened by the pressure of water, has given way and the fish pond, which became a Georgia byword in the 1936 senatorial campaign, has vanished. Talmadge claimed the dam cost only $300. Senator Russell said it cost $10,000. Senator Russell defeated Talmadge. The dotted line shows where top of dam was and the arrow shows its height as compared to that of a man.

Talmadge's '$10,000' Fish Pond Is Gone With the Flooded Waters

Heavy Rains Swell "Whitley Lake" and Dam Gives Way; Scores of Persons Flock to Site in Monroe County.

FORSYTH, Ga., May 22.—The "$10,000 fish pond" on Gene Talmadge's Monroe county farm may and may not be an issue in the forthcoming senatorial race but, regardless, the fish pond is no more.

Recent heavy rains so swelled "Whitley lake" on the Talmadge property that the big dam gave way and the water and fish, if any, went with it.

Talmadge built the dam in 1935. In the 1936 senatorial campaign, Senator Russell charged that it had cost $10,000 and that it was constructed by John E. Whitley, LaGrange contractor and friend of Talmadge. Talmadge insisted that the dam cost only "about $300."

As soon as word spread over the county that the dam had burst scores of persons who had never seen it flocked to the Talmadge farm near here. Photographers, too, betook themselves to the dam site to make pictures. There were no pictures permitted during the 1936 campaign.

Talmadge has continued his farming operations here since he left the Governor's office but he still maintains his home and official residence in Telfair county.

Flyer's Plane Breaks Loose, Hits Woman.

FARMINGDALE, N. Y., May 22.—(UP)—Hugo D'Annunzio, son of the late Gabriele D'Annunzio, famed Italian poet, was arrested tonight on a charge of third-degree assault, after his pilotless airplane careened into a parked automobile in a freak accident, injuring a woman.

Justice of the Peace John C. Robbins held the Italian flyer in $500 bail after a brief arraignment.

D'Annunzio's plane broke loose while he was preparing to take off at Seversky field, near here. With no one in the pilot's cockpit, the plane shot over the field and smashed into a row of parked cars.

Mrs. Susie H. Jones, 44, of Huntington, N. Y., was attempting to escape from her car when the single-motor plane crashed into it.

UNION ISSUE SET FOR PRESBYTERIANS

General Assembly at Philadelphia Also Will Discuss Minimum Salaries.

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—(P)—Nearly 1,000 ministers and lay delegates to the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., were on their way to Philadelphia today for sessions at which minimum salaries may be fixed for pastors, and issues of church union settled.

Commissioners to the 150th assembly—convening in the city where the first assembly was held—will attend from all parts of the United States and the church's far-flung mission field. The sessions start Tuesday and continue through June 1.

Two important elections are scheduled. A moderator will be chosen and a new stated clerk to succeed the Rev. Dr. Lewis Seymour Mudge, of Philadelphia, who must retire in August when he becomes 70.

YOUNG PEOPLE RALLY TO CHRISTIAN BANNER

MERIDIAN, Miss., May 22.—(P)—Church issues were temporarily laid aside at the 78th annual assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States as nearly a thousand young people rallied to the Christian standard in services this afternoon.

Assembly action on changes in the church code concerning waging of war, which drew warm debate Saturday, and committee reports on other important issues were scheduled for tomorrow and Tuesday.

Today debates and issues were relegated to the background as the churchmen held three services of worship. The young peoples' rally, sponsored by the Young Peoples' Council of the assembly, featured the day's program.

Young Presbyterians marched behind a band to the church where speakers urged them to hold high the Christian banner.

"What we are doing today and tomorrow will determine largely what we will be in years to come," said Ellis Nelson, Austin, Texas, president of the Young Peoples' Council. "With this thought in mind we must find room for Christ in our plans. People today are prone to place emphasis on things other than Christ, making pleasure their chief aim in life."

NEWMAN PLANT STARTED.

NEWMAN, Ga., May 22.—(P)—James A. Beavers, local businessman, announced start of construction of a $50,000 meat packing plant here. He said it would contain facilities for meat curing of all kinds, chilling, freezing and storing.

MEN who grow fine tobaccos—who sell them—who get the checks—they know the quality of tobacco that goes into various cigarettes. And they say, "Camels buy our finest grades." State May Supply Its Onion Eaters

Within a few seasons Georgia may supply its own onion demand for the spring months. B. E. Surry, market news reporter for the United States Department of Agriculture, said an Atlanta concern received last week its first truckload of yellow Bermuda onions from south Georgia.

He said they were "hard, well-matured and of nice size" and sold for $1.50 per 50-pound bag wholesale—"the same as Texas No. 1 yellow Bermuda onions." Last year Georgia shipped into Atlanta only 12 carloads of onions compared with 126 carloads received from Texas.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Clayton Odell, a stranger in Norwood, is taking a sun bath in a canoe on a near-by lake one Saturday afternoon in July when the craft is jolted violently. A second later a yellow bathing cap rises over the side of the canoe and a girl, short of breath, apologizes for the intrusion. "May I hang on here just a minute, please?" she asks. He invites her to climb aboard, which she does with alacrity. She is obviously relieved by this chance to rest after a long swim. In reply to Clayton's geniality offered questions, she says she went out swimming with several girls from the office where she works, and was trying to improve her distance. But her endurance was not equal to her ambitions. The canoe was her only refuge. Clayton and the girl take a liking to each other instantly. After a lively conversation the girl, responding to a question from Clayton, tells him her name is Hillary Layne, and that she works in the office of the hostess mills owned by Romulus Wardlaw, whom she describes as "sort of shriveled up and grouchy." Her inexperience and knowledge of Norwood had irked him when she once substituted for his secretary. She also complains about the poor pay all the employees receive. Clayton gives her his name, but otherwise does not identify himself. He brings her to shore. Arriving home Hillary is dismayed when her mother tells her that she has just heard that Wardlaw's nephew, named Odell, had come to Norwood and would help him run the mills. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT VI.

"Miss Layne, this is Mr. Odell who is going to be associated with Mr. Wardlaw," Matilda Harrison explained graciously. "He wishes to look at our files. The system, you know. Will you be good enough to show him?" Hillary favored the young man with a cold stare and nod. "Surely she answered, the chill in her voice matching that of her eyes. She turned and walked toward the steel cases, leaving Clayton to follow. "General correspondence in this first section," she informed briefly, coming to a halt.

Odell scanned the index card on the topmost drawer, pulled out the container forward on its roller bearings. "Nice files. They don't stick," he observed in a low voice. Then added: "And I don't give a tinker's dam about them. I merely wanted to beg your pardon, Hillary Layne. Very sorry."

"Invoices in the next section," said Hillary's frigid little voice. She moved ahead, opened another top drawer with a resounding clang. "It was beastly," she added, under cover of the noise. "Invoices, I see. I'm still sorry."

"Copies of orders, next. Alphabetically arranged by firm names. 'Abbott Brothers' . . . and so on. You're still being beastly."

"All very clear, but not so encouraging," Clayton mused. He reached for another drawer and opened it experimentally. "Here we have the 'F's.' If there is any forgiveness, it ought to be around here. F-A . . . F-E . . ."

"I'm sorry, but we don't have that name on file," Hillary remarked clearly. "And I don't think you are being so terribly humorous. Besides these general files, we have others in the vault and transfer room. I don't think you would be interested in them particularly and I would really like to get back to my desk."

"Why, of course, I'll be able to find my way here without troubling you again. I mean I'll try not to trouble you too much. By the way, I believe a gentleman by name of Knott looks after your accounting in the main. Would you mind pointing him out?"

"That is his standing," Hillary said, pointing to the high desk over in the corner. The man wearing an eye shade. Was there anything else, Mr. Odell?"

"I suppose not. It is not far from noon. I think I won't bother Mr. Knott until he has had his lunch. Thank you so much."

With an engaging smile, he strolled to his uncle's room, entered and closed the door after him. Hillary walked mechanically to her desk, sat down with a grim determination to disregard the knowing glances and smiles coming from all directions.

She was seething inwardly. It was unspeakable that Mr. Odell had singled her out like that. . . . made her conspicuous in front of all the others. It wouldn't take long for the girls of the swimming party to draw their conclusions. Olive would be a big help. If only Hillary hadn't mentioned the name of Odell. But it was too late to worry over that. No matter what explanation she offered it would be greeted with jeers. Then came the hysterical desire to burst out laughing. Pretending to show Mr. Odell their filing system! His bland interest. . . then, in an aside insisting she forgive him for the trick he had played on her. And all without a smile. It was so nervy that it really was rather funny, after all.

But if Mr. Odell thought for one little minute that . . . "Hey, love's young dream! didn't you hear the clock go twelve?"

It was Olive, smiling provokingly. "Of course I did. I'm going to lunch in a second."

"Don't tell me the new boss asked you! You're sure the fast worker."

"Don't tell me the new boss asked you! You're sure the fast worker."

"Skip it, will you? I didn't have the faintest idea who the man was when I spoke to him Saturday. You don't need to believe it. The whole thing so dumb that nobody would believe the truth. So what's the use of taking him long to figure out a way to meet you again. And the nerve of you telling me he wasn't good-looking! He's got me palpitating almost as bad as poor old Harrison. We're all jealous of you, if you want to know. Let's go."

Beginning with that first day in the offices of the Norwood Mills, Clayton Odell was unobtrusively, but very much, in evidence. He browsed through ledgers and form records, making copious notes on scratch paper. Much of his time was spent in conferring with Mr. Knott. That gentleman, who was one of the oldest employees, was at first nervously resentful of the attention he drew from the newcomer, then thawed perceptibly when the younger man proved respectfully attentive and surprisingly well-informed in the matter of cost accounts.

In his easy and informal way, Mr. Odell also managed to contact all the others in the main office, discovering what records they were responsible for, their incidental duties and names. The latter he seemed never to forget. There was but one person whom he neglected on his casual rounds.

Miss Hillary Layne of the files. Perhaps he felt that her case had been attended to ahead of the others. Perhaps he told the truth when he said he didn't "give a tinker's dam" about files. Perhaps he considered that he had attempted to make amends for his earlier presumptuousness and had been rebuffed. Perhaps he was waiting for her to make the next move. Hillary went over this "perhaps" list many times without any satisfactory conclusions.

Mr. Odell always greeted her smilingly and by name when he encountered her in his excursions about the office. But that was all.

Clayton set her an example by taking a set on the table, swinging his neat sport shoes slowly back and forth. He reached for lighted cigarette lying in an ash tray and puffed it thoughtfully before making known his wishes.

MYSTERY OF THE AMAZON.
1—Fawcett's First Journey.

Today we start the story of one of the mysteries of the Amazon river. It is the record of an Englishman's adventures when he dared the jungles, of how he was lost, and of what happened to men who went to search for him.

Among the many interesting things about the Amazon are its strange fish. These include electric eels and piranhas.

The next part of the journey led up the valley of the Heath river, a stream which forms one of the uppermost branches of the Amazon. Around it live the white Indians known as Guayana. Fawcett knew they had been the custom of shooting white men from ambush, also of poisoning springs from which strange water was likely to drink. Yet he went on with the trip.

In three canoes, well loaded with baggage, the whites paddled and poled their way. Sometime they had to pass rapids, or were free from snags, but they found the jungle travel pleasant enough until they came to a bend in the stream.

Around the bend they saw Indian village on one of the banks. Fawcett told his men to steer toward shore to make a visit. What a visit it turned out to be! All the savages in sight so ran to cover and in a moment an arrow came flying from behind a clump of bushes. It struck one of the canoes!

KING HARDWARE COMPANY ROOFERS NOW IN BUSY SEASON

EXPERT WORKMEN
DEVOTE FULL TIME TO APPLICATIONS

Easy Payments or FHA Financing Plan Makes King Service Popular.

Backed by its 56 years of successful and satisfactory service to the people of Atlanta, plus the nationally known and guaranteed stability of Certain-tyed products, which it handles, the roofing department of the King Hardware Company is finding itself these days in the midst of a busy season, reroofing scores of Atlanta homes and other buildings around the city.

The liberal new credit plan of the company for this type of work, which is offered for as little as a few cents a day, or a financing plan arranged through the FHA, where easy payments can be extended over a period of years, is adding much to the popularity of the service of the hardware company's roofing department.

In its reroofing work, or in the installation of new coverings for homes, the long-established hardware company features the famous Certain-tyed roofing products. Shown herewith are two pretty homes on Rosedale drive, N. E., on which the experienced roofing men, under the direction of Bennett Hutchison, manager of the roofing department, have just completed a covering of Certain-tyed roofing. Hundreds of other homes in Atlanta, says Mr. Hutchison, have been topped off with the same Certain-tyed Universal lock shingles that were used on the houses shown.

"Millerized" Shingles.
"The famous Certain-tyed Universal lock shingle is the most popular type of roofing material just now in Atlanta," said Mr. Hutchison. "Of course, there are many other types of roofing, but this particular Certain-tyed type of shingle is locked at the corner to every shingle surrounding it, resisting the most furious wind or storm. That is one of the features that makes this type of shingle so

Home Owners Select Certain-tyed Lock Shingles

Homes of two brothers, J. B. and Charles G. Bruce, at 1141 and 1145 Rosedale drive, N. E., which have just been re-covered with Certain-tyed Universal Lock shingles by the roofing department of the King Hardware Company. "We are much pleased with the material and with the service rendered by the roofing department of the King Hardware Company," said Charles G. Bruce, whose home is shown to the right.

popular. Another reason why Certain-tyed roofs are superior is because they are "Millerized," giving them longer life. That means that right straight through from the mineral granules that compose the surface and make it fire-resisting, non-fading and beautiful, down to the felt which composes its core, the asphalt which saturates that felt, the materials used to coat it—every step, every product, every process, is examined with utmost vigilance and most minute care. "Millerizing" is an exclusive patented process of super-spray saturation. It is based upon a very simple fact—that asphalt is the life of the roof.

"The mineral-coated surface of this shingle resists fire from chimneys or near-by blazing buildings, while it is so designed as to turn water away from the joints. It is made in a variety of lovely colors to harmonize with every style of architecture and color of house, and to fit in beautifully with all surroundings."

Experienced Roofers.
The King Hardware Company maintains a corps of several expert estimators—men who have had long training in this type of work. Besides Mr. Hutchison, who has been a roofing executive for 15 years, there is employed in the work of estimating and supervising the application of roofs George C. Vannerson, J. E. Edmundson and Louis E. Mewborn. A telephone call to the company will bring any one of these experienced men to consult with you about your needed or proposed roofing work. Careful estimates will be made and your needs explained from an expert, technical standpoint. There is no charge—no obligation on your part. It will be a pleasure for any of them to do this for you.

"Customers appreciate our roofing crews," concluded Mr. Hutchison. "Their splendid service, their consideration of the convenience of occupants of homes while doing their work, their care in protecting shrubbery, trees and lawns, and removing all scraps, leaving the premises tidy and clean when they have finished, has won city-wide patronage for us and is keeping us quite busy just now."

cutting excessive tire wear," said Bowden.

"Imperial Body Works operates an authorized Bear Service station for correcting alignment of wheels, axles and frames to factory specifications.

"If you will drive your car by our shop, we will give it a free checkup. We will also be glad to check your headlights and properly focus them so that perfect vision is obtained."

Imperial Body Works is known as "complete automobile rebuilding" and the claim of officials is that it is "the only shop in Atlanta equipped to handle complete car rebuilding under one roof."

Work of the firm includes motor work, brake work, thorough tightening of cars, removal of dents in fenders, body, hoods, doors or any other part of the automobile. The firm also specializes in rebuilding wrecked cars, regardless of how badly it has been wrecked.

This concern also does paint jobs and simonizing. They can touch up and restripe any part of the car,

M-R-M SYSTEM PUTS 'PEP' IN MEN

Skilled Physical Instructors
Helping To Kill 'Spring Fever' Feeling.

Business and professional men—athletes or men advanced in years—men who are members of the M-R-M System Health Club, with its well-equipped gymnastic arrangements and its skilled physical instructors, are dodging "summer slumps" and keeping themselves in the pink of condition by visits to the club, located on the third floor over the King Hardware Company, at 53 Peachtree street, is the claim of officials of the club.

The function of the club is to put "pep" in its members to make them better fit for work or play, to eliminate that old "spring fever" feeling, and to make, as far as possible, one feel that fine physical energy which will be so badly needed in the hot summer days ahead of us.

Those who are members and who regularly—even occasionally—visit the club, are enthusiastic over the results obtained. One member just leaving the club a few days ago remarked to H. G. Morse, assistant director: "I feel like a different man every time I leave your club. Your instructors, it seems, can just look at a fellow when he enters here and know just what kind of exercise and treatment to give him, to chase away the 'spring fever' symptoms and to put a new spring in his step."

While the membership is composed chiefly of business and professional men—men who want to be kept "in the pink"—it includes other widely contrasted types, both in age and physical condition. The professional athlete wants to keep himself from growing stale. The plain, active businessman desires a certain course of training and exercise to keep him fit, while the man of the more advanced and quiet age feels the need of proper health conditioning to keep his advancing age from weighing too heavily upon him. There is modern equipment, correct exercise and proper physical training for all types, says Mr. Morse.

New members are always given a thorough examination by a physician to determine their capacity for exercise.

A call at the club will be welcomed to any interested and Mr. Morse will be glad to discuss individual health problems. A telephone call to the M-R-M System Health Club will bring all information.

is their claim, while simonizing is done by experts. Their upholstery department is well equipped, and officials claim that they are able to upholster a car partially or complete. They carry a line of new spring patterns of tailor-made seat covers and slip covers. They announce that they can replace tops, glass, and woodwork in cars, and that they do electric and acetylene welding.

A Large Wrecker.

"A feature of our service," adds Mr. Bowden, "is that with one of the largest wreckers in Atlanta, we can and do bring cars any distance from our shop. We have a force of 18 trained mechanics, every one handling specialized work, and each one has had several years experience in his particular line."

It Sits on Breezy Lookout Mountain's Highest Top

New Cloudland hotel, popular Lookout Mountain summer resort, will open its 1938 season for guests on Saturday, May 28. It is under lease to Mrs. B. L. Fariss, of Atlanta, and will be managed by her daughter, Mrs. C. M. Mabry and Mr. Mabry.

NEW CLOUDLAND TO OPEN MAY 28

Popular Lookout Mountain
Resort Is 2,300 Feet Above Sea Level.

If you would like to hie away for a week-end trip, or even for a longer stay in the perfection of Lookout mountain's cool and invigorating summer climate, then take a little journey to this delightful mountain top and spend a while at the New Cloudland hotel, in Cloudland, Ga.

This popular resort will again be opened on May 28. It will be under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Mabry, Mrs. Mabry being the daughter of Mrs.

B. L. Fariss, of Atlanta, who has this inviting resort under lease for a number of years.

Both Mrs. Fariss and her daughter are well remembered as gracious hostesses during the past summer season, the former spending practically all week ends and other periods there, while the daughter was and will be again, constantly in attendance upon the desires and needs of her guests.

With the opening of the 1938 season at the New Cloudland, a number of guests are expected and are being prepared for. It is only two and a half hours away from Atlanta, situated on the top of Lookout mountain, 2,300 feet above sea level, and affording a wonderful and magnificent view from every one of its 52 light and airy rooms, each room being equipped with a private bath.

The New Cloudland provides the proverbial southern hospitality, southern cooking, scenic grandeur, and the beauty of an historic country, and insures modern comforts in an inviting rustic setting. Its social activities brings together in informal spirit a company of pleasant people and a carefree round of things to do. The dining room is operated on the American plan, and is most attractive in its redecorated and harmonious colors of soft blue and rich gold. On the roof garden a spacious hall affords dancers their greatest delight, music being furnished by Mack Thomas and his orchestra.

There is a near-by lake where guests enjoy the privilege of boating, fishing and swimming. In the "game room" guests may play to their heart's content such games as ping-pong, shuffle board and other indoor games, to say nothing of the delightful experience of horseback riding, a popular feature with guests.

There are screened porches, sunny terraces, and a large lobby. These afford guests ample space to sit around and talk or play bridge.

A letter to C. M. Mabry, in care of the hotel, Cloudland, Ga., will bring you further details, which will be gladly sent, at no obligation from you, say the managers.

RULING EXPECTED BY SUPREME COURT ON U. S. TAX POWER

Right To Levy on State
Salaries May Be Decided Today.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP)—The supreme court may rule tomorrow on litigation that involves a request by 25 states for protection against "federal usurpation" and the "burden of federal taxation."

At issue is the right of the federal government to impose an income tax on the salaries of officials of the New York Port Authority, which was created by New York and New Jersey to operate bridges and tunnels between the two states.

In a brief filed with the court, the 25 states asked the justices to sustain a decision by the federal circuit court at New York that the authority functioned as an agency of the states and hence was immune from federal taxation.

Another question scheduled to be argued before the court tomorrow is whether the National Labor Relations Board should be allowed to withdraw from the federal circuit court at Philadelphia litigation involving the Republic Steel Corporation. The decision will apply to withdrawal of similar litigation against the Ford Motor Company and other concerns.

Sisters Share Honors Won by Sons in School

Two sisters shared the honors won by their sons yesterday with the announcement that Elbert Tuttle Jr. and Mac Asbill Jr. will take the leading parts in the graduation exercises at the North Fulton High School. The boys, with their mothers are, left to right, Elbert Tuttle Jr., Mac Asbill Jr., Mrs. Tuttle and Mrs. Asbill.

Two Sons of Sisters Are Selected For Leading Roles in School Rites

Elbert Tuttle Jr. and Mac Asbill Jr. Will Be Valedictorian and Salutatorian Respectively at North Fulton Graduation Exercises.

Sons of sisters have been elected to take leading parts in the sixth annual graduation exercises of the North Fulton High School, June 1.

They are Elbert Tuttle Jr. and Mac Asbill Jr., who will be valedictorian and salutatorian respectively when they receive their diplomas with other seniors in the largest class in history of the school.

Young Tuttle is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Tuttle, his mother being the former Miss Sara Sutherland. Asbill is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mac Asbill and his mother was formerly Miss Jennie Sutherland.

The two boys have followed in their mothers' footsteps in that they have been classmates throughout their high school days. Their choice of a college is yet undecided.

When their mothers were girls and known as the Sutherland sisters, they lived in Jacksonville, Fla. There they attended high school and were graduated. They later attended Goucher College, where Mrs. Asbill was president of the senior class. Both sisters graduated from the college.

In addition to young Tuttle and Asbill, other keynote speakers scheduled to take part in the graduation program are Dr. William V. Gardner, who will deliver the baccalaureate address, and Dr. Ryland Knight, who will give the baccalaureate sermon on Sunday, May 29, at the Second Ponce de Leon Baptist church.

Kill Just One Fly Now and Save 13 Million Swats

It's time to begin swatting flies, Dr. J. P. Kennedy, city health officer, advised Atlantans yesterday. The doctor pointed out that if one fly is killed now, the lives of millions of future flies—all of them potential carriers of disease—are destroyed.

The city has far fewer flies now than it had in years gone by but there are still enough of the pests to be dangerous, he said. By killing one fly, it is estimated more than 13,180,000 flies will not be born in a season. When you swat one you are battling in the millions.

5 PERSONS CLAIM LEVINE BOY ALIVE

Tavern Keeper at Dallas 'Positively' Identifies Lad as One He Fed.

DALLAS, May 22.—(AP)—One of two youths who munched sandwiches at a tavern here two nights ago was identified "positively" today as Peter Levine, 12-year-old son of a New Rochelle, N. Y., attorney, who was reported kidnapped three months ago.

Five persons, including Lee Hayes, the tavern proprietor, made the identification. The youths, hungry and ragged, told Hayes they were without funds. Homer Sealy, former district attorney's investigator, bought the boys sandwiches. The boy identified as Levine was not talkative.

Today Sealy saw a circular describing Levine.

He folded it so that the name and the caption offering $25,000 reward was hidden, and asked Hayes, "Does this look like anybody you've seen?"

"Why certainly," Hayes replied, "he's the boy we bought the sandwiches for Friday night."

FINAL SERVICES HELD FOR W. T. YARBROUGH

Funeral services for William T. Yarbrough, 75, retired casket salesman who died Saturday at his home, 498 Crew street, S. W., were held yesterday afternoon in the chapel of J. Austin Dillon, conducted by the Rev. W. H. Clark.

Mr. Yarbrough had been a salesman for the Atlanta Casket Company for 20 years before he retired several years ago. He was a native of Meriwether county, but had lived in Atlanta for the last half-century. Burial was in College Park cemetery.

RUBINOFF UNDERGOES SECOND OPERATION

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., May 22.—(AP)—Dr. Walter F. Martin announced this afternoon that a second emergency operation had been performed on Dave Rubinoff, concert violinist, who submitted to an emergency appendectomy here May 6.

"He is a very seriously sick man," Dr. Martin said.

Man Finds Opossum Instead of Rat—In Trap

John W. Jones, of 106 Maxwell street, Decatur, set a trap for a rat Saturday night and his trap worked perfectly.

Investigating yesterday morning after hearing the trap spring, he found an opossum instead of a rat.

"I still think a rat has been disturbing my pantry," he said. "But I'm making no apologies to the opossum."

HESS LEADS MARTIN BY 6,000 BALLOTS

Oregon's Fall Campaign
Shapes Up as Liberal-Conservative Battle.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 22.—(AP)—A clearcut liberal-conservative battle appeared in prospect for Oregon's gubernatorial campaign this fall as returns trickled in from remote precincts in Friday's primary election.

Fiery, 74-year-old Governor Charles Martin who claimed loyalty to the New Deal without "rubber-stamp" submission, trailed the victorious Henry Hess, of La Grande, by more than 6,000 votes with less than 30 of the state's 1,681 precincts unreported.

Hess had polled 58,806 votes to Martin's 52,148 in 1,559 precincts. Hess, supported by the state's liberal factions, will be opposed in November by Charles Sprague, Salem publisher, who polled 60,913 votes in 1,635 precincts to 23,699 for Sam H. Brown, his nearest rival in the Republican race.

Republican leaders predicted strong support for the Martin faction of the Democratic side would enhance Sprague's chances of victory in November.

WOODS FIRE THREATENS LEXINGTON, GEORGIA

LEXINGTON, Ga., May 22.—(AP)—The town of Lexington, seat of Oglethorpe county, was threatened tonight by fire in a woodland tract southeast of here.

ITALIANS 'ATTACKING' FRONTIER OF TUNISIA

TRIPOLI, Libya, May 22.—(AP)—Italy's highly mobile Libyan troops and aviation forces launched a make-believe attack today towards the frontier of French Tunisia on the northwest in maneuvers to test their war power.

Marshal Italo Balbo, governor of this Italian colony in North Africa, was in command of the maneuvers which were witnessed by King Vittorio Emanuele.

Weak as a Baby? Not This One! He Can Chin Himself at 6 Months

ST. LOUIS, May 22.—(AP)—The young man on the flying trapeze had nothing on Wallace Gough, who can "chin" himself although he's less than six months old.

Proud Papa Galen Gough likes to show off the baby's strength, and calls Wallace "the strongest baby in the world—for his age."

The tike—who by rights should be crawling by now—gurgled happily as he teetered on one foot, standing on his father's hand.

Otto Schmidt, Soviet Arctic Hero, Seemingly Has Weathered Criticism

Usual Sequel to Official Disfavor Fails to Materialize.

By HENRY SHARON.
(Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

MOSCOW, May 22.—Professor Otto Schmidt, hero of a dozen Arctic adventures, seems to have weathered the storm that gathered about him a few weeks ago. At that time he was definitely under a cloud because of criticism leveled against his northern sea route administration.

According to general expectations based on Soviet practice, the first blast should have been followed by a second, more annihilating attack. There seemed every reason for assuming that Schmidt was likely to be removed and consigned to oblivion or worse. For Bolsheviks in disfavor seldom stage comebacks.

The usual sequel failed to materialize on this occasion. The report on his work, which Schmidt was supposed to submit by April 15, was never made public, and the whole issue, like most Soviet state affairs, has been settled in camera.

Directed Polar Trip.

Schmidt's hold on the popular imagination was further strengthened in the spring of 1937 when he landed an expedition of four planes and men on the very top of the world. The success of the North Pole expedition and the ice-floe episode that followed it bore testimony to Schmidt's daring, ability and organizing genius. Schmidt was officially proclaimed a "hero of the Soviet union."

In the summer of 1937, his fame was enhanced by the two successful flights of Chkalov and Gromov across the pole to America, which he had been instrumental in promoting.

But the first clouds began to gather after the failure of Levanevsky to reach America in the third Soviet trans-Polar flight attempt. Rumors were to the effect that Levanevsky had met with disaster as the result of foul play.

Considerable criticism, none of More contributions are needed if 400 underprivileged children in Atlanta are to have the opportunity of attending the Atlanta Mission's free air camp near Hapeville this summer, the Rev. Feltton Williams, director of the mission, said yesterday.

Appealing to Atlantans to donate at least $5 for one boy or girl, Director Williams said approximately $125 had been contributed for the camp. Materials and supplies have also been given for the camp, he said.

Mr. Williams praised the cooperation of Atlanta civic clubs and patriotic groups and urged others to lend their support. Contributions should be sent to the Atlanta Mission, 125 Ivy street.

Officials of the Atlanta post office and Raymond W. Torres, city planning engineer, have been conducting a campaign for the year in an effort to obtain proper conspicuous numbering on streets.

Hornsby pointed out that ordinances provide penalties for property owners and residents who do not post their house numbers so they can be easily seen but added he does not want to have to make any cases.

Atlantans Asked To Show Plain House Number

Conspicuous display of house numbers was demanded yesterday by Police Chief M. A. Hornsby.

The chief, commenting on a letter to Mayor Hartsfield from Charles P. Copeland, declared many houses are numbered properly but that the figures are of scarce value.

Officials of the Atlanta post office and Raymond W. Torres, city planning engineer, have been conducting a campaign for the year in an effort to obtain proper conspicuous numbering on streets.

Hornsby pointed out that ordinances provide penalties for property owners and residents who do not post their house numbers so they can be easily seen but added he does not want to have to make any cases.

Crackers Lose First, 5-4, But Sunkel's Hurling Wins Sec

BREAK O' DAY!

(Editor's Note—Break O' Day is written today by Jack Troy, acting sports editor of The Constitution, pinch-hitting for Ralph McGill.)

It beats all.
That is, the ingenuity of man does.
Up at Tiger, Ga., there's a fellow who, in a fishing sense, can take his place alongside the great inventors of all time.
He doesn't have to take his hat off to the Franklins, Fultons, Edisons or any of those other fellows who contributed to the advancement of civilization.
No, siree.
J. W. Cragg, who has a fishing camp on Seed Lake, has come up with an invention that should prove a real boon to fishermen.

No longer need one sit for hours watching a lazy cork bob in the water; no longer is it necessary to test one's patience to the breaking point when the wily denizens of the deep refuse to bite.

J. W. Cragg has removed the drudgery from dull days. With his invention, one may combine fishing with sleeping and make it a perfect outing.

His letter to the editor, which is self-explanatory, follows: "I have a fishing camp on Seed Lake. And attached is the way I catch fish with hook and line.

"Cow bell rings for me to bring landing net and get him."

If there be any skeptics in the crowd, J. W. Cragg will be delighted, no doubt, to give a demonstration.

It must be understood, of course, that he's not lazy; he's just practical.

His invention is just the thing for those week-end trips where there always is somebody bobbing up who insists on fishing.

THE BEST PITCHING WINS.

Manager Paul Richards, talking about the vast improvement in the Memphis club, ascribed it to the pitching. "The best pitching wins," Richards pointed out.

"Now you take in Doyle, Casey and Heusser, Memphis has probably the three best pitchers in the league. Werk, or Veverka, who was with us, is bound to help them. And they also have Paynik, Spencer and Sauerbrun.

"And they have the kind of catching to handle such pitching. Bottarini and Monzo both are class men, and both fine receivers.

"The Memphis team, outside of the pitching and catching and a couple of outfielders, is the same as last year. It's improved pitching that makes the club a pennant possibility.

"You can add to that the fact that Billy Southworth is a fine manager. He knows how to get the most out of the talent he has."

VEVERKA PITCHES.

Frank Veverka, who trained with the Crackers in the spring under the name of Werk, returned to Atlanta in grand style as the top pitcher of the Chicks.

And Southworth wasted no time in sending him against his former mates. Veverka pitched most of the first game. The Crackers wasted no time going after Veverka. They scored three runs in the first on a walk and three hits.

Veverka said recently there were two clubs in the league he had rather beat than any others—Atlanta and Nashville. He had trials with each club and failed to stick. So the Chick manager left him in there to try for his second straight. He beat Atlanta at Memphis. He was the winning pitcher yesterday.

Veverka lasted until the seventh. The Chicks had gotten him three runs and he, himself, had batted in a fourth to take the lead, but Rucker and Mauldin singled in the seventh to send him away.

Hugh Casey, the Buckhead boy, replaced him and the Crackers, getting one run, were still behind. Casey can be credited with an assist in Veverka's victory, along with Umpire Grant.

BILLY LIKES ATLANTA.

Southworth sticks to his belief that Atlanta is the team to beat. He no doubt is figuring on the Crackers obtaining some help.

It would seem that addition of one or two pitchers would make a lot of difference to the Cracker club. At the present time they do not seem to have more than three effective moundmen, at the outside.

Pitching is easily 70 per cent of it. A club can't win consistently without good pitching.

There is another side to it, of course. You can't pluck winning pitchers off—or out of—the bushes. And those who can give passable performances in the majors, stay there.

Sooner or later, however, the Crackers will come up with what they need, it is expected. Earl Mann never has let the fans down.

WILLIAMS PRAISED.

Richards had high praise for Dewey Williams, the peppery reserve catcher who is the sensation of the Southern league.

Williams, 21, is the youngest catcher and the brightest prospect. For the time being he is showing enough to keep Manager Richards out of the lineup from time to time.

It pleases Richards immensely. He wants Williams to catch as much as he can.

"Dewey has more confidence than any youngster I ever saw. He takes a toe-hold at the plate and is tough to get out.

BELCHER'S MARK IN QUARTER MILE LEADS U. S. FIELD

L. S. U.'s Mile Relay Team Gives Southeastern Another First.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON JR.
NEW YORK, May 22.—(P)—The college track and field stars of the midwest, east and south, who fear the worst about next month when the mighty Pacific coast teams come east for the intercollegiate A. A. A. and national collegiate A. A. title meets, can hold up their heads for a while.

A series of conference and sectional meets Friday and Saturday produced unusually fine performances over a wide area. A lot of them were as good as those recorded on the west coast, but they were scattered.

Michigan, in the Big Ten meet at Columbus, Ohio, was the only outfit strong enough to overcome its opposition. Even the Wolverines didn't appear to have as much concentrated power as Southern California. The bad news on that point will be heard next week when the Pacific coast championships are held.

Stellar feats Friday and Saturday turned up everywhere from Birmingham, where the Southeastern conference championships were run off, to the New England intercollegiate at Providence and the Big Six meet at Lincoln, Neb. No one meet had a monopoly. Although the Big Ten championships recorded nine "bests" and shared in another in the 16 standard events, six out of eight major meets had some sort of a share.

The Southeastern conference was tops in two events, the heptagonal games of the "Ivy league" in two. The New England, Southern conference and North Central conference meets also appeared on the list of leaders while the best performances in the three other sections in their specialties. Watson's new conference mark was 52 feet 11 1/2 inches in the shot put. He also heaved the discus 154 feet 8 1/4 inches and broad jumped 24 feet 11 3/4 inches.

Other outstanding feats were a 47-second quarter mile by Charles Belcher, of Georgia Tech, a 4:10.9 mile by Chuck Fenske, of Wisconsin, and a 9:10.4 two miles by his teammate, Walter Mehl.

WARNINGS.
A few warnings from the far west were heard yesterday, however, when Oregon's George Varrault vaulted 13 feet 11 1/4 inches in the Pacific coast northern division meet and Gil Cruter, of Colorado High, jumped 6 feet 8 1/4 inches in the Rocky Mountain Big Seven meet.

Here are the best performances in eight meets in the midwest, east and south:

Yates Is Dark Horse In British Amateur

By RALPH MCGILL.

TROON, Scotland, May 22.—Charlie Yates, the youthful Atlanta member of the United States Walker Cup team, was established as the dark horse favorite to win the British Amateur today on the basis of consistent practice rounds.

Yates has been playing very well indeed and his opponent, Johnny Fischer, whom Yates meets Tuesday in the first round, has been erratic to date.

Charlie did not practice today and will take it easy tomorrow. He spent today on a sightseeing tour. The Atlanta youngster is getting more publicity in the English papers than any of the others.

Yates says players must shoot on a dime to score here, due to a wind that varies all day. One can never play the same shot twice.

The Atlanta boy feels good about his chances, although he says he'll have to be at peak form to eliminate Fischer.

The rise of Yates' stock is due to three things—he's canning the ball from all over the green, Fischer has suddenly lost his touch and if he can hurdle Fischer he should go on to the semi-finals without much trouble.

Bobby Jones years ago figured Yates had a brilliant future and after winning the Western and Intercollegiate titles he may break through this year. He has been unusually diligent about practice since he arrived. When the other members of the Walker Cup team went to a London party, he stayed at the hotel and went to bed.

While Fischer spent most of his time today trying to quell a rebellious hook, Charlie, content with his game, went with Johnny Goodman and got some good Scotch religion.

THE WAR AT TROON.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Thirty-four years ago this month, Walter J. Travis tossed an exploding bomb into British golf. The Australian-born American, well over 40 years old, won the British amateur golf championship. He fought his way through a dour and hostile field with iron nerve, straight hitting and putter-tipped with flame.

That happened in 1904. Twenty-two years passed before Jess Sweetser picked up the Travis trail to win again. And when Bob Jones won at St. Andrews in 1926, he was the third American to carry away the blue ribbon of British amateur golf—up to Lawson Little's annihilating double triumph in 1934 and '35.

Five American victories in 34 years isn't too hot a pace, even when you consider all the handicaps. Such stars as Jerry Travers, Francis Ouimet, Chick Evans, Bill Fownes, Bob Gardner, George Voight, Jimmy Johnston—these and many more—all had their chance, and fell by the windy waysides.

The amateur golf championship is one lone outpost which the British have defended with unusual skill and courage.

The Next Star.

Today at Troon along the wind-swept and bleak northern coast of Scotland—not so far away from the dismantled Castle of Bruce and Wallace—United States golfing forces are marshaled for a new invasion.

Members of the United States Walker Cup team, representing almost every golfing section of the country, swing into action over the quick death of the 18-hole route against the pick of England and Scotland. From more than 250 starters, only one can survive through the eight rounds of match play that last out the week.

The defending champion is Bob Sweeney, another American-born star, but a golfer who has played the better part of his game in England. Sweeney is a tall, good-looking, curly-haired young fellow who can play his share of golf—especially under conditions known on the seaside links.

Picking the Winner.

Picking the winner of a British amateur championship is just about as simple as picking the correct number on a roulette wheel. Bob Jones, for example, once drew an opponent named Israel Sidebottom.

Both put up stiff fights. The United States Walker Cup team, has another chance at the British amateur crown this week. Francis first went across in 1914 as United States open champion, and was cued out in a hurry—his first round as I remember it. Twenty-four years later he is still at it, playing exceptionally well until he begins to tire.

The best all-around amateur we have to offer is Johnny Goodman, of Omaha. The next best is Ray Billows, of upper New York state. The trouble here, however, is that Goodman and Billows are drawn to meet Tuesday in case no untoward incident happens before this date. This means the elimination of one of America's stronger players almost off the bat.

But these are not the only stars who might go the route. Bud Bicknell's card:

Long, Stephenson Lead Handicap Qualifiers.

C. O. Long and K. A. Stephenson, with net 66's, took the lead Sunday in qualifying for the East Lake Club handicap tournament. Handicaps will continue to apply in the qualifying rounds as well as in each match.

The qualifying will extend over through next Sunday afternoon and every player in the club is urged to participate.

It's the one tournament of the year in which the high scorers have an equal chance to play in the championship flight.

Bud Bicknell Cards 66 at Capital City.

R. J. (Bud) Bicknell, with a sensational 66, set the individual scoring pace on the Capital City course during the week end. Bud had only two fives on his card. Dr. Minnich was second in the scoring with a par.

ROOKIE RELIEVES DURHAM IN THIRD AND STOPS TRIBE

Umpire's Unbelievably Bad Decision Costs Crackers in First.

By JACK TROY.

Atlanta and Memphis, who apparently have an understanding to play nothing but close ball games, divided a double-header in the series opener yesterday at Ponce de Leon park. A fine Sunday crowd of 8,632 attended.

Memphis won the first game, 5 to 4, with the help of Hugh Casey's relief pitching and Umpire George Grant's wierd decision on a play at first base, and Atlanta took the second game, 2 to 1.

The teams have met four times this season. Each game has been decided by a single run, with Memphis winning three of the four.

Grant's decision yesterday involved a wide throw by Casey in the eighth. John Rucker, who had replaced Mauldin in center field, unquestionably was safe as Johnny Hill scored the tying run, but Grant ruled Reese's foot was on the bag. There were two out when the play came up.

THE ELASTIC MAN.

There is this much to say about it; if Reese was able to keep his foot on, or near, the bag on that wide and high throw, he is a freak of nature. A rubber man would have stretched himself out of joint trying it.

They were two fast and well-played games. In the opener, a sixth-inning Memphis rally knocked Bill Beckman out of the box and sent the Chicks ahead by a score of 4 to 3. The Chicks scored one in the first and the Crackers got three in their half.

Frank Veverka, who had a trial with Atlanta under the name of Werk, knocked in the fifth Memphis run in the seventh. But it was in the same inning that the Crackers knocked Veverka from the mound and Hugh Casey got the side out with only one run being scored.

CASEY FINISHES.

Casey finished the game and Veverka got credit for the victory. Larry Miller finished for Atlanta. Rose led the Crackers' batting attack with three for five. Pearson collected two for Memphis.

The Crackers did not get to Kit Sauerbrun until the fifth inning of the second game. The Chicks, having scored one in the second, led until the fifth.

Bolling hit safely for the first Crackers hit. Sunkel scored Bolling with a single to right. Bolling went to third. Mauldin flew to Doljack and Bolling scored after the catch. That was the ball game. Heusser relieved Sauerbrun and returned the sixteen Williams and Durham allowed the Chicks to score in the second inning. Reese led off with a double and Monzo and Doljack went out. The Blakeney rolled halfway between the plate and the box and Durham and Williams collided. Du-

JAPANESE FACING COLLAPSE AT HOME, SAYS POLICY GROUP

Statement Asserts War May Cost Japan Its Place as World Power.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(UP)—The spectre of a political and economic collapse at home, rather than Chinese resistance, threatens Japan with defeat in her war of subjugation in China, the influential Foreign Policy Association said tonight in a statement.

The statement was based on findings by David H. Popper, of the association's research staff, who called the Sino-Japanese conflict "the prelude to a fearful war in the Far East"—a war that may cost Japan its place of eminence as a world power.

Popper minimized the importance of Japan's military victory at Suichow and said that even if the Chinese government should be driven back from the coast and from Hankow, "it may conceivably succeed in organizing a most self-sufficient, semi-military state in the unconquered interior which would be an important source of resistance to Japan."

Economic Strain. This means, he said, that it will years before Chinese opposition can be completely eradicated from the areas now held by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's armies and, meanwhile, "the first flush of war enthusiasm in Japan is being displaced by the grim realization that the nation faces a period of extreme economic and political strain."

"Thus," Popper wrote, "the local incident of July 7, 1937 (start of the undeclared war) has become the prelude to a fearful war in the Far East." He reviewed the economic burden heaped on the Japanese people as result and said that "prospects for a stalemate appear to be increasing."

"Since outbreak of the conflict," Popper wrote, "serious financial and economic problems have arisen at home. There has been a notable increase in the issue of bank notes. Prices are definitely higher. Commodity shortages and the enforced rationing of stocks are harbingers of a curtailed standard of living. The whole gradual inflationary process, which has thus far been kept within bounds, is chiefly the consequence of a series of unbalanced budgets since 1931."

er deficits since 1931 has raised the Japanese national debt from 5,900,000,000 yen in that year to 11,893,000,000 at the end of 1937. "Thus," he continued, "the prospective increase in the public debt before April, 1939—6,000,000,000 yen or more—practically equals the total increase in the debt since 1931."

He wrote that during 1937 gold holdings of the Bank of Japan were revalued; an emergency reserve of 801,000,000 yen was retained; and gold valued at not less than 846,000,000 yen was shipped abroad. He pointed out that Japan must now attempt to restrict its imports to the level of exports of commodities and of newly-mined gold.

"Expansion of the textile industry has been halted; imports of raw cotton are sharply restricted; and 30 per cent of the staple fiber must be mixed with all cotton goods for domestic use," he declared.

"The first signs of the drastic effects of these import restrictions are already beginning to appear," he concluded. "In recent weeks the scarcity of cotton and virtually all other commercial raw materials has forced Japan to resume purchases in the world market. Concurrently, the outflow of gold to the United States, which had ceased in January and February, has once more begun."

THREE BANDS TIE AT HOME-COMING

Tech High, Boys' High, G. M. A. All Hold Lone Contest Trophy.

Tech High, Boys' High, and Georgia Military Academy bands played to a dead heat in a contest Sunday afternoon, featuring the conclusion of Atlanta's first annual Home-Coming Week Festival at Lakewood park.

After 45 minutes of spirited competition between the three organizations, judges decided they were tied for the first-place trophy offered by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of homecoming.

In decision left holders of the cup in a quandary, and no immediate solution was offered.

The contest followed a concert by the Atlanta All-Girl Military band, directed by H. A. Taylor.

Home-coming week marked the formal opening of Lakewood park for the summer season.

It was announced that all attractions will be open at 10 a. m. daily until the season closes late in the fall.

DR. RAFFENSPERGER DIES IN MOULTRIE

Heart Attack Fatal to U. S. Director of Swine Sanitation in State.

MOULTRIE, Ga., May 22.—Dr. H. B. Raffensperger, 61, director of the United States Department of Agriculture's swine sanitation work in the southeast with headquarters in Moultrie, died at his home here early today. He was the victim of a heart attack. Dr. Raffensperger's health began to fail last October when complications developed during an attack of malaria and had spent several weeks early this year in a Chicago hospital.

He was widely known in livestock circles. He had done research and field work since being transferred to Moultrie seven years ago from Miles City, Mont. He developed a method of keeping pigs free of parasites and other sanitary features which enabled farmers to finish hogs for market at the age of six months, or less than half the time formerly required. The system he worked out is being used on the majority of the livestock farms in south Georgia, upper Florida and southern Alabama.

He was born in Newport, Pa., educated at the University of Chicago and had been with zoological division of the Department of Agriculture for 31 years.

He is survived by his wife and three daughters, Mrs. Albert Parker and Mrs. Max Weaver, of Chicago, and Mrs. Harry Beasley, of Spencer, Iowa. His body will be taken to Chicago tomorrow for burial.

VALDOSTA TO ADD WAREHOUSE SPACE

City Busy Preparing for Tobacco Season.

VALDOSTA, Ga., May 21.—Additional tobacco warehouse floor space for two warehouses here this season will mean the equivalent of one new concern in number of extra caskets to be accommodated. In 1937 Valdosta took the state lead in tobacco sold, as well as in highest average for a similar amount of tobacco—more than 10,000,000 pounds. With an increased floor space this year, tobacco interests here expect to exceed the poundage of 1937, and warehousemen already are putting out every effort to facilitate the rapid handling of tobacco on the local market.
